From export to import – Reacting to the coal imports in South East Asia

With the slowdown of China's economic growth affecting both coal prices and purchasing levels, the inaugural Coaltrans Emerging Asian Coal Markets conference offers an opportunity for international coal producers to connect with new customers. Developing a sustainable regional energy system in South East Asia is critical to its success. Coal is expected to take a significant role but as domestic reserves are becoming increasingly depleted and are generally of a lower rank, what presence will the region have in the international coal markets?

Attend the conference to establish exactly how the ASEAN region can adapt to the change in market dynamic and develop the necessary infrastructure for importing coal cost effectively whilst limiting the environmental implications associated with coal.

Key reasons to attend:

- ✓ Dedicated papers on energy demand, upgrading coal technologies and the future of coal mining in South East Asia
- ✓ Interactive panel sessions giving you the chance to ask questions on coal policy, energy strategy and power demand
- ✓ Access to facts and figures to help you form a coherent and profitable marketing strategy for the next year
- ✓ Opportunities to create infrastructure solutions that will open up South East Asia as a critical coal market
- ✓ An extensive range of networking activities connecting you with key decision makers

“This was a comprehensive and well organised event. The topics have been chosen perfectly in relation with the current scenario.”

Debdutta Ganuly, PT.SMGC

- Highlighting future opportunities for domestic coal production

Richard Marston, Principal and Senior Practice Leader, Golder Associates

10:10 Questions and discussion

10:15 Networking refreshment break

SESSION 2: REGIONAL POWER DEMAND

10:45 Chair's opening remarks

As the economies of Cambodia, Laos, Malaysia, Myanmar, Philippines, Thailand and Vietnam grow, the demand for steam coal and supporting transportation infrastructure will prove crucial to the success of SE Asian country growth strategies. Each SE Asian country will have a very different outlook on coal fired power generation and the prospects for it meeting their country's requirements. In this panel session, representatives from the featured countries will have the opportunity to give an overview on their energy policy moving forward and just what quantities of coal they will be intending to burn in the next couple of years as well as outlining whether they will be using domestic or international coals.

Topics to be discussed:

- SE Asian country power demand
- Timeline for the construction of new coal fired power plants
- Domestic coal production versus imported coal
- Policy shifts that may affect forecasts – Removal of energy price subsidies, imposition of a carbon tax and/or export or import taxes on steam coal
- Expected quantities and qualities of steam coal to be procured

Prapas Vichakul, Executive Vice President, EGAT (Thailand)
Nguyen Cong Dung, Deputy Managing Director, PetroVietnam Coal Import and Supply Company (Vietnam)
Thana Boonyasirikul, Vice President, Foreign Investment Division, Ratchaburi Electricity Generating Holding PCL (Thailand)
Azhari Sulaiman, Senior Vice President, Malakoff Corporation Berhad (Malaysia)

12:30 Networking lunch sponsored by

SESSION 3: REGULATING COAL PRODUCTION

14:00 Chair's opening remarks

14:05 Learning from the Indonesian regulatory experience – What emerging Asian coal markets should do differently to Indonesia from a regulatory perspective

- Understanding the nature of foreign investment in mining projects
- Balancing the needs and concerns of foreign investors with domestic interests
- The importance of ensuring regulatory certainty and consistency
- The realities of mandating domestic processing and refining

Bill Sullivan, Licensed Foreign Advocate, Christian Teo Purwono & Partners (in association with Stephenson Harwood)

CONFERENCE AGENDA

- 14:25 Managing Indonesia's domestic demand versus international demand
- Latest forecast of Indonesia's domestic coal requirements – 2012 to 2017
 - Ability of Indonesia's coal producers to meet these domestic requirements
 - Experience to date with the implementation

- 14:45 Developing and operating coal projects to meet Philippines domestic demand
- Review of coal resources and reserves in Philippines
 - Outlook for coal mining in Philippines in the next five years
 - Overcoming logistical challenges to ensure the coal meets the market
 - Timeline for commissioning new mine mouth coal fired power plants by 2015
- Joseph Omar A. Castillo,
Vice President – Business Operations,
PNOC Exploration Corporation

15:05 Question and discussion

15:15 Networking refreshment break

SESSION 4: PERSPECTIVES FROM THE COAL PRODUCERS

- 15:45 Chair's opening remarks
Geoffrey Gold, Chief Executive Officer,
Asia Mining Research

This panel will offer a selection of international coal producers the chance to discuss how they can supply these new markets. The focus will be on the producers that specialise in lower rank coals and panellists will be requested to discuss the exact qualities of coal that they can make available as well as how they intend to incorporate SE Asian markets into their future marketing strategies.

- Aris Munandar, Director, PT Permata Energy Resources
David Heap, Marketing Director, PT Harum Energy
F Hary Kristiono, Business Development and Marketing Senior Manager, PT. Medco Energi Mining International
Junwen Wen, Overseas Marketing, Thai Capital Corporation Public Company Limited
